Since 1923, The Biltmore Los Angeles has played host to countless dignitaries and celebrities, from President John F. Kennedy to The Beatles, making it a living legend in the world of hospitality. It was also the location for numerous films, music videos, award ceremonies and more - one can only imagine the people and events these gilt walls and painted ceilings have lived through. As a testament to this, the hotel was designated a Los Angeles Historical-Cultural Monument in 1969.
